

The New Enlightenment Movie

The New Enlightenment's author, Robert Bivona, produced a movie that describes the issue of our large and growing inequality in the words of some of the most knowledgeable people in the country on the subject, including 2 Nobel Prize Winners in Economics, the Former Senior Vice President and Chief Economist of the World Bank and a former US Secretary Of Labor among other highly respected experts on the subject. It also describes some solutions. This movie, with the same title as the book, was produced about four years before the book.

Although the movie is not professionally produced we believe you will find the movie interesting and educational. It is mainly a montage of internet sourced videos compiled in a thematic order. You can view it by clicking on this link: The New Enlightenment movie. You can view a preview by clicking on this link: Preview

(The New Enlightenment book details many more, and far more highly developed, policy solutions to the problem of the large and growing inequality problem. The book also includes political system and media reforms which the movie does not include. It is the result of four years and thousands of hours of additional research, analysis and development work after the movie was produced.)